5 Ways to Avoid Sports Injuries

Playing sports is a lot of fun. Getting hurt is not. Take these five steps to prevent injuries so you can stay in the game.

1 Wear Protective Gear

Protective gear is anything you wear that helps keep you from getting hurt. The gear you wear depends on the sport you play (e.g. helmets or protective pads).

2 Warm Up

It's not a good idea to just bolt on to the field and start playing. You shouldn't even start stretching until you're a little warmed up. So take a light jog to get loosened up and ready to play.

3 Know the Rules of the Game

When players know the rules of the game—what's legal and what's not—fewer injuries happen. You and the other players know what to expect from each other.

4 Watch Out for Others

Some rules don't have anything to do with scoring points or penalties. Some rules are just about protecting other people and being courteous.

5 Don't Play When You're Injured

This is a really important one. If you love sports, it's tempting to get right back in the game, even after an injury. But playing when you're hurt—or before an injury has had a chance to fully heal—is a bad idea. It can lead to an even worse injury, one that might sideline you for a long time.

Chef Louie Explains:
Getting Muscles

Ever wish you could be as muscular as a superhero or your favorite professional athlete? Well, the big muscles you're thinking about aren't possible for children. Professional athletes are grownups, whose bodies are different from children's bodies in many ways. On the bright side, both boys and girls can do a lot to build strong, healthy muscles.

Playing Makes Muscles

It sounds too simple, but it's true. Playing, running, jumping, and riding your bike can make your muscles stronger. Any physical activity you like to do—from dancing to playing football—can make you stronger. Why? Because you're using your muscles when you perform the activity.

Eat Strong

What should you eat if you want strong muscles? You might think you need a lot of foods that contain protein (such as meat and eggs) or foods that contain iron. But no one magical food helps build muscles. Your muscles—and your entire body—will be strong and healthy if you eat a variety of nutritious foods.

Should You Pump Iron?

Some children want to lift weights so they can look bigger and stronger. But lifting weights won't produce big muscles in children who haven't gone through puberty yet, and lifting heavy weights can be dangerous to children's muscles and tendons.
